Virtual Corporation Forms Strategic Relationship with ICOR to Provide Business Continuity Maturity Model® (BCMM®) Assessment Training

BUDD LAKE, NJ, September 11, 2008, Virtual Corporation, Inc., a business continuity consulting service corporation, today announced a partnership with ICOR, a leading provider of professional development, to provide increased availability of BCMM® training classes.

The BCMM® is a benchmark analysis tool for businesses of all sizes to perform self-assessments and assist in improving their ability to recover from a disruption. Currently, Virtual Corporation has training partners in the US, Canada, Asia-Pacific and Mexico. Through this partnership this valuable training will be offered more frequently and available throughout the world including Europe and Africa.

The BCMM® provides a consistent, objective means for evaluating disaster readiness including evaluation criteria in 8 Corporate Competencies that include business recovery, security management, incident management and technology recovery. This can also be more broadly applied to the evaluation of a supply chain or a strategic business partnership. Since October of 2003, over 3,000 people in over 47 countries have viewed the BCMM®, and there are currently licensed assessors in 10 countries.

“ICOR has the reputation for delivering quality training”, said Margaret Langsett, Executive Vice President of Virtual Corporation. She said, “we are looking forward to working with them to bring the BCMM® training to a larger audience and with greater frequency.”
